DRUNKENESS OF ANIMALS

Most of the Higher Class Have a Natural Fondness for Fermented Liquors.

Most of the higher animals-as monkeys, elephants, bears, horses and dogs -have a natural fondness for fermented liquors, and suffer from the abuse of these liquors as men do. From the book of Maccabees it is evident that war elephants were maddened of old with new wine, as they to the present time. Managers of oakum-picking in town have few termenageries and employes at the various zoological gardens know that the elephants under their care are prepared to go on a wild drunk whenever opportunity offers. Whisky is officially given them when they are ill or low-the quantity varying from five to ten gallons, according to the requirements of the case. This is put into their drinking water. Valuable Almanaes.

An almanac that is issued by the Chinese government is considered the most elaborate one in the world. It is in 12 thick volumes, which give full information as to the lucky times and places for performing the acts of every-day life.

The most valuable almanac ever made is in the British museum, and it is priceless. It is said to be at least 3000 years old. The days are written in red ink on papyrus in columns, and under each is a figure, followed by three characters signifying the probable state of the weather for that day. The most curious calendar at present in use is that of the natives of Central America, where the months are only 20 days in length, and these are named after animals.

The most expensive almanac is the British "Nautical Almanae," which costs that nation yearly the sum of $19,710.

Among modern European almanacs the "Almanach de Gotha" has been the longest in continuous circulationaspward of 135 years-(Washington

I have no more headaches, and feel good when I wake in the morning. My breath is not offensive and have gained 14 pounds in weight in the past three months. I can cheerfully recommend the Old Indian Herb Medicines, and as soon as I had taken two bottles I was relieved, and have continued until now I have taken twelve bottles. Today I am fully as healthy as a man of my age can expect to feel, and I have no rheumatism nor have I any of the other diseases that I complained of for so many years. I am as healthy today as any other man in the state of Maryland, and I can never speak too highly of the Old Indian Herb Medicine Man and of his herb medicine.
